A LANDMARK YEAR

HONOURING PHARMACY LEADERS AT MM2016

Professor Debra Rowett received SHPA's highest honour for 2016, the FRED J BOYD AWARD, at the 42nd SHPA National Conference in Perth.

Awarding the honour at Medicines Management 2016 (MM2016), SHPA President Professor Michael Dooley paid tribute to Professor Rowett's strong leadership in Australian pharmacy for over 30 years.

'Professor Rowett has been a champion for improving the pharmacy profession through both the development and improvement of practice standards and through improvements in the standards of education.

'A member of the 1985 inaugural SHPA Committee of Specialty Practice in Clinical Pharmacy, she has helped develop the first Standards of Practice, and has continued to provide invaluable aid and contributions to hospital pharmacy since.'

Also at MM2016, the AUSTRALIAN CLINICAL PHARMACY AWARD was awarded to Debbie Rigby, who was recognised for her 'ongoing quest to bring her experience and knowledge to everything that she does. Ms Rigby epitomises what it is to be a clinical practitioner focused on ensuring patients get the best possible outcomes,' said Professor Dooley.

Kate Richardson was announced as the recipient of the 2016 SHPA MEDAL OF MERIT AWARD, which recognises outstanding recent contribution and exemplary effort within hospital pharmacy. Professor Dooley said Ms Richardson was recognised for her contributions to the rapidly expanding e-Health sector: 'She is an outstanding pharmacist who thinks strategically, and collaborates and partners with others to build and vision and deliver outstanding results.'

A TEAM EFFORT

SHPA Chief Executive Kristin Michaels says the year's many milestones would not have been possible without the direction of SHPA's Federal Councillors and the contributions of SHPA staff and volunteers.

'I want to acknowledge all staff at our Melbourne and Canberra offices whose hard work in 2016-17 has set up SHPA for an even brighter future supporting and empowering members.

'Again, the innovative ideas and determination of our volunteers has made an incredible impact. They continue to be SHPA's essential connection to the frontline of hospital pharmacy – guiding our advocacy, outreach and education, and informing the design of future programs – to ensure our members can drive their careers forward and lead the pharmacy field.'
